Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Rebelliad: Or Terrible Transactions at the Seat of the Muses; A Poem in Four Cantos, Auctore Engineae Societatis Poeta Few writings have recently been so much read in manuscript as the poem here presented. More than twenty years have elapsed since its delivery before one of the societies in Harvard University, and it is familiar to all who have since graduated, and by the major part, perhaps, has been transcribed. A quarter of a century has produced nothings the seat of the Muses to vie with the character it has held for wit and pleasantry; and it still remains the text-book of the jocose, and is still regarded by all, even the melancholy, as a most happy production of humorous taste. The Rebelliad is not then wholly unknown; nor are its merits yet to be pronounced upon. It as little requires from us an introduction, as, after the character it has so long held, it admits our commendation. We will only here add to the brief remarks we have made in the margin, that it was written principally in the recitation room, and delivered in 1819, immediately after the transactions it relates, before the Engine Club then existing among the members of the University. The name of the author, which has been of late very generally mistaken, stands among the members of 1818 in the Med. Fac. Catalogue, and may be distinguished by the title, Engine Societatis poeta.
